“ I knew Jami as one of my students in my junior high class at Northwood. She was a delightful girl, always cheerful and wanting to please. It has been many years since I have seen Jami, but I know she went on to have a happy life with family and friends. When I think of her, I reflect on all the great class I had at Northwood in my early days of teaching, and I think of Jami practicing for the class plays we put on. She was always the leading lady.
